From the President's Boat

Our Ozarks Tournament turned out well in spite of the weather. There were a lot of good size fish caught even though our boat didn't turn in a keeper. Congratulations again to Gene Reim for his big bass of the tournament. I asked at Lake of the Ozarks for the angler's opinion on using the state regulation of 12" on Kentucky bass at Bull Shoals. There is a place on the entry form to vote your choice. We will count the votes and go with the majority. If you have already mailed your entry and wish to voice your vote call me. I want to welcome our new members Steve Carnal, Tim Jett, Jack Tschannen, Mark Sylvester, Brian Sylvester, Kelly Brewer, Ric Stokes, James Rolf, Scott Mertz Jr., Kathryn Peck, Todd Steinke, Richard Steinke, Bill Scheller, Robert Snell, Tim Gallagher, and Michael Wren. We have a good group of people in our club. Thanks to everyone for your cooperation at take-off and weigh-in. Things are going pretty smooth and we are getting better with everyone's help. See you at Bull Shoals.

Stretch D. Truth says ...

"A Very Smart Catfish"

I once heard of a boy who was fishing off a lake shore trying to catch catfish. He was by himself, but there were two men out on a boat drinking a little bit in the middle of the cove.

The boy had been sitting there for a couple of hours and was getting tired of fishing, so he started to reel his line in.

It felt like it was hung on something on the bottom. One of the two guys saw him having trouble and yelled to him that he would swim down and get it unhooked.

The boy was a bit nervous about that because the man had been drinking, but he said all right.

The man got undressed and jumped in. He went underwater and was down there awhile and the boy was getting scared, but suddenly the man popped up gasping for air.

He hollered to the boy that he had the biggest fish he'd ever seen on the other end of his line, but there was one problem.

There was an old car down there and the fish was in it. The boy asked the man if he could pull the fish out.

The man said he had tried everything he could think of but every time he got close to the car, the fish would roll the window up.

And the award goes to celebrating his 50th birthday!

For those of you that missed the party, we celebrated Terry's 50th birthday at the Ozark tournament (black balloons and all). He received many appropriate Over the Hill gifts. My sister-in-law Sandy (Terry's wife) told me that Terry just wanted this birthday to pass quietly without mention so we had to ignore that fact. Here is a picture of Terry after he finished playing his "Birthday Blues" on the harmonica. Just had to embarrass you one more time Bro! (I know, I know I'll pay for it later!) We also celebrated Donnie Eubanks birthday. Happy Birthday again Donnie! ... I think she just turned 29.

Tips Spinnerbaits

Here are 10 tips guaranteed to make you more successful:

1. Fish hard. Rig a baitcast outfit with 17-pound line, tie on a 3/4-ounce Classic Spinnerbait and cast around the thickest cover you find. You may get snagged, but you're going to catch fish. Never let the bait sink out of sight. Jimmy Houston is one of the best spinnerbait fishermen and he keeps his bait in sight 99 percent of the time. You'll see strikes and learn how to catch bass on a spinnerbait. Avoid setting the hook when you see the fish hit. Bass hold a spinnerbait for a long time, so there's no need to jerk until you FEEL the fish.

2. Use the right blade combination. Indiana blades offer a good compromise between willow leaf and Colorado designs. Colorado puts out a lot of vibration while willow leaf produces a lot of flash. The Indiana has characteristics of both. However, there are times when you want more vibration and flash — as in dirty water or over thick vegetation. The Colorado will call stubborn fish to the bait while the willow leaf comes through grass better.

3. Tandem vs. single spin. A single spin may produce more vibration, but the tandem helps insure at least one blade spins continuously when banging around brush. If a single-spin blade stops spinning, the lure lays on its side and hangs up. To keep it relatively snagless, the spinnerbait must be running upright so the wire arm protects the hook. The tandem design not only produces more flash, but you can fish it slower because the two blades provide more lift. Opt for a single Colorado blade when you want to drop the bait alongside stumps, docks or pilings because it rotates seductively when fished on the fall.

4. Match colors to conditions. White in clear water during sunny days; chartreuse and white for dirty water and sunny days; blue and/or chartreuse for clear water on overcast days; chartreuse in dirty water on overcast days; and bright colors in muddy water regardless of the sky.

5. Vibration. Bigger blades produce more vibration. If wind or water activity has stirred the water you're fishing, increase the vibration and flash. If it's calm, try smaller blades with less flash. It's easy to spook a fish in shallow water by throwing big noisy baits. However, if fishing brush tops in 10 to 15 feet of water, the big flashy baits are best.

6. Dressings. Use a 3-inch plastic trailer or pork rind. When choosing skirts, split rubber skirts over living rubber skirts, but mix the two. Put the skirt on backwards; it gives the lure more life. Avoid trailer hooks — they prohibit you from fishing thick brush where the fish are. The extra hook will cause the lure to hang up more.

7. Big baits. A one-ounce spinnerbait is a favorite for slowly winding the lure over the top of deep vegetation, down river ledges or along large logs in deep water.

8. Wire arm. Use spinnerbaits built with 32nd grade wire, a small wire creates more vibration. Also, the flexibility of small wire reduces the number of fish you'll lose.

9. Conditions. Low light days are good spinnerbait days, but the opposite can be true, too. Sunny days push bass under logs and into thick cover, where a spinnerbait will call them out. Wind can make a difference. If you're catching bass on worms and the wind picks up, switch to a spinnerbait. Chances are you'll not only catch fish, but bigger fish.

10. Location. Spinnerbaits have no restrictions, regardless of water depth or time of year. Cover is the key. In shallow water, swim it through bushes, or along laying logs that angle into deep water. In that situation, wind the lure slowly through the deeper branches, turning the handle just fast enough to keep the line tight. Keep the bait near the structure.

The spinnerbait will catch fish in almost any water and under any condition providing you're consistent and select the right bait for the right areas. Gain confidence in it, and you'll become a firm believer.
